Alice Joan Aull Bride In Late Summer Nuptials

Before an altar banked with white gladioli and carnations, Miss Alice Joan Aull, younger daughter of Mrs. A. M. Aull and the late Dr. Erastus Aull, exchanged marriage vows with Mr. Ian Hay, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Hay of Irricana.

Rev. W. E. Askew performed the nuptial rites at the afternoon ceremony solemnized Saturday in St. Stephen's Anglican Church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. John Aull, wore a wedding gown of cream duchesse satin. The fitted bodice featured a heart-shaped neckline and long, rilly-pointed sleeves while the bouffant skirt was trimmed with applied roses of self material. Her bridal veil of French illusion, which had been worn by the bridegroom's mother on her wedding day, cascaded from a coronet of French lace. Her bouquet was of red roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. John Aull, and the bridesmaid, Miss Dorothy Margach, wore formal taffeta frocks of sky blue and mauve respectively. Complementing their gowns were matching halo hats and colonial bouquets of pink roses and sweet peas.

Mr. Neil Hay was best man and ushering the guests to their places were Mr. Stuart Aull and Mr. Henry Ernest. Mr. Bruce Gore Barrow played the nuptial music.

The Blue room at the Palliser hotel was the setting for the reception where the mothers of the bridal couple assisted them in receiving their guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Hay left on a wedding trip by motor for British Columbia by way of the United States after which they will make their home in Calgary. For their going-away ensemble the bride donned a coral gabardine suit with a navy top coat and matching accessories complemented by a cascade of gardenias.

Federal Provincial Affairs
Minister Greatly Needed

Ottawa contemplates a Minister of Provincial Affairs. This not only seems a logical extension of liaison in government—the provinces have ministers of municipal affairs—but also it will serve an eminent purpose if it helps smooth over federal-provincial relations which have been assuming evermore threatening proportions in recent years.

Had not the war overshadowed its importance and robbed it of its high value, the Rowell-Sirois Commission Report might have become one of the truly important documents in our constitutional history. It is not only readable but approaches its problem in mastery fashion.

Undoubtedly the governments have absorbed some of its conclusions, and the federal government has indicated it is intended to approach solutions on the general lines advocated, but it is now dated to the point where its recommendations could only be adopted piecemeal.

Time has shown that the Canadian Constitution (the British North America Act) did not settle to a nicety the respective powers of province and central government. Studied in relation to contemporary history, it is beyond question that the original intention was to establish a strong central government. Sir John A. Macdonald undoubtedly was of this persuasion, and the Imperial Government as well.

At the outset, appeals to Privy Council tended to strengthen federal power. It could be contended, not without reason, that as long as a threat from the United States remained, the Imperial Government favored a strong central administration. When this threat diminished, then patently disappeared, a strong federal government became a bit of a thorn in the side of the United Kingdom government.

And appeals to the Privy Council reflect this change in attitude. Decisions now began to lean toward the provinces.

In times of emergency, such as the depression, public opinion—if nothing else—tended to be partial to federalism. This, of course, became even more accentuated during war.

With responsibilities beginning to shift to lower levels in peace, demand for more responsibility for the provinces was bound to arise. Before it breaks into open squabbles, it would be just as well if machinery were established to sort out the points of difference.

Now that appeals to the Privy Council have been abolished, the Supreme Court of Canada becomes arbitrator on dominion-provincial rights. With no remote reflection on the court intended, as it is, in effect, a federal body, the dominion might be placed in an unenviable position in an acrimonious dispute with the provinces.

No one hopes, nor anticipates, this will arise, but it would certainly be a step in the right direction if something could be done to try and eliminate disputes at the source, and a sound basis of co-operation established, no matter what political party were in power, federally or provincially.

Margaret Munnerlyn Mitchell Marsh, 49, author of the world-famous novel, "Gone With the Wind," died as the result of injuries received when she was run over by an automobile. The driver had nine previous traffic convictions. In the hands of some persons an automobile can be as dangerous as a loaded revolver.

An Alberta farm machinery dealer ran into a new excuse for a farmer's preference for old-time methods. Noticing a farmer hoeing potatoes, he asked: "Why don't you use a cultivator?"

"It's easier to quit this way," replied the farmer.

Sucker Luck Held
Even After Death

By JAY LLOYD

Many persons have told me how they narrowly missed making a fortune in the sensational stock market rise of Quenont, but my favorite among allegedly true stories concerns Andrew Stewart. The reason is not simply because Andrew did make a fortune but also because it was one of the very rare occasions when a sucker was not a sucker in the end solely through being a sucker in the first place.

As part of a deal, a stock and bond salesman named Malcolm Macdonald took in 5,000 shares of a penny stock. He tried to sell it through the brokerage house he represented, but found that, while 1½¢ were asked, there was no bid.

During his rounds he tried to sell Andrew Stewart some of the shares. One of the little ironies of the story is that the old royalties would also have made him a fortune in this particular case, which cannot be said of old royalties in general, as many an investor has discovered.

"WORTHLESS STUFF"

"I'm not buying any more of that worthless stuff," declared Andrew. And as for that "cheap oil"—Andrew as a good Carlton county Orangeman, shuddered.

Although he suspected this was one of the Cadillac properties, Macdonald never said a word until he had persuaded Stewart to let Andrew have a look at it, knowing that Andrew would not know whether he had bought a car or a mine even if he told him. It proved to be a Thompson-Cadillac, then selling for 46¢.

Macdonald kept referring to it as Catholic, the old man winning each time he said it, until he finally gave it up to a point he was glad to exchange his 5,000 shares for 5,000 shares of Macdonald's penny Quebec mining stock. Macdonald had three certificates, two of 2,000 and one of 1,000. He clipped the three together and put a note on it:

"Some day this will be worth $20."

Stewart forgot about the tin box in which he kept evidence of lack of sales resistance until one day he met the county reeve.

NOT INTERESTED

"You should have been in town today, Andrew," said Reeve Garne Nesbitt. "Was the market ever going crazy?"

"No interest to me," said Stewart.

"Thought you bought stocks," said Nesbitt.

Stewart was somewhat annoyed. "If I had the $18,000 I have thrown away, I could sure do with some of it now with the price of farm produce the way it is."

"You mean you had Nesbitt," with the subject still on his mind, "there was one stock went from 12 cents to $20."

The $20 brought back Macdonald's notion to mind. (Poor Macdonald probably thought at the time by committing himself to the 5,000 shares total being worth $20 he was exaggerating.)

"What's the name?"

"Quenont."

"I think I have some of that."

"You're crazy."

HE WAS CRAZY?

But Stewart wasn't crazy. He got out the strong box and there were the 5,000 shares of Quenont on which Macdonald had bought he made a very astute trade.

The day Stewart went to town to cash in, the first person he went to see was Charles Smith, who had sent Macdonald to him.

"Know where Macdonald is these days?" he asked Charlie.

"No," replied Smith, smelling trouble.

When Stewart told him what he wanted, Macdonald for Charles smelled something else: money of which he wanted a share. But Smith knew his man and didn't rush things, using psychology on him he knew would work from past experience.

WANTED SHARE

For two days, the two of them went on a bender, Charlie telling Stewart that now he had made his fortune the proper place to keep it was the bank—not squander it on riotous living—that he should be some, and last, but not least, that this was wasting Smith's time because he wasn't making any money doing it.

Prehistoric Man - I Don't Believe It!

By T. W. PUE

MAN AN "EVOLUTION"

I have been slugging through my copy of "Prehistoric Man," sent me by the Non-Fiction Book-of-the-Month Club. It is written by professor of Natural History who professes to know that man started on his road to perfection some 40,000 years ago and is growing more perfect year by year.

According to this author, this was not the real beginning of man. It seems the early man was a creature (not a good word—creature means created; better call him "evolution") instead took on man-like characteristics ages before he was in the form of a lemur. This is a new development from the theory that man came from monkeys.

The book reads like an imaginary account of a fairy tale, which is what I consider it to be. And I don't believe in Prehistoric Man.

T. W. Pue

THERE'S ANOTHER EXPLANATION

I can't accept the theory that mankind is a product of evolution for several reasons. I believe that man was created, and as the record of creation, factually written, was made by a reputable writer 4,000 years ago you can't, therefore, say the creature was Prehistoric.

The Book of Genesis is part of the Mohammedan Koran, Jewish and Roman Catholic Bibles. Besides these three groups there are some 500 other divisions of Christianity—various sects loosely termed Protestants—who also accept Genesis as the Word of God.

And to me the explanation of the origin of man as given in the Word by Moses some 2,000 years before Christ, is complete and acceptable.

FAILURE OF SCIENCE

The big mistake that scientists make is in attempting to prove the truths they dig up without allowing for at least one divine miracle.

That miracle is the origin of life.

What is life. A soldier runs across a field in the face of scattered fire. A bullet strikes him in the temple. He falls down dead. Later companions go in at the night and bring him back—body, bone, flesh, clothing and equipment.

He is all there—just as he was a few moments before being hit by the bullet. Yet there is one thing

REDEMPTION!

The upshot was that when Stewart was at the proper mellow level of Scotch whisky, he wrote Smith a check for $100,000 for which Charlie gave an I.O.U. on which he wrote: "To be redeemed in stock."

Some years went by and Stewart died. His heirs found this I.O.U. among his papers and Smith received a lawyer's letter.

At this particular time Eldona was selling for 25¢, but in 1945, even before it was listed, had between $4 and $5. Smith replied that he had redeemed the I.O.U. in 1945 for 2,600 shares of Eldona, which had been in safekeeping until surrender of the I.O.U., and furnished the lawyer with the certificate numbers (after, of course, purchasing and getting listed in the certificate book). He figured the $750 it cost him was cheaper in the long run than a costly lawyer's fee.

Now Eldona, which has struck ore, is on the way up again, and it is possible that Stewart's heirs will get their $100,000 back.

So even after death, Stewart's sucker luck held good.

Wife Preserves

Whereupon the father thought: "Well, my son's been to college, he reads the papers and he listens to the radio, and he ought to know."

So the father cut down on his meat and bun orders, took down his advertising signs, and no longer bothered to stand out on the highway to sell his hot dogs. And his hot dog sales fell almost overnight.

"You're right, son," the father said to the boy. "We're taking care in the middle of a great depression."

missing. It is the life he had. Where did it go? Without that life the soldier is useless. He is nothing.

Scientists can duplicate in a laboratory the chemical compositions of living things. But they cannot create living things because they cannot inject that unknown factor—life.

The point I want to make is this: Don't turn God out of your calculations unless you know, not the origin of man, but the origin of life.

I BELIEVE

I hold to the story of creation as given in Genesis because there is none better. When I accept the doctrine of an Almighty God, I have but one uninvolved problem—the origin of God. But if I were to try to prove every miracle of life without the universe, and I would be in a difficult position indeed. I would be led into by-stander of indecision and frustration.

AN ANALOGY

I'd like a man who, seeing the workings of a washing machine, light bulb, and an electric iron and understanding their mechanical features, still tried to prove their workings by accepting the miracle of electricity, simply because he can't prove the origin of electricity.

Like Divinity, I cannot understand electricity, why it exists or what it is made of, but if the wire cut the "current" is gone, and the light goes out, and the electric iron and washing machine are all like dead, and I know that there is a faith which I do not understand.

So it is with life. I can understand the explanation for many things only by accepting a principle, and I know that there is a principle. God is the explanation—I know he exists because he makes things work—but I can't explain his existence.

Two weeks ago I wrote an article describing my personal impressions of the Hutterites. A number of readers who live near Hutterite colonies (and therefore know the subject of my writings better than I) have written some protestations. As far as I know, what I wrote was what I knew from firsthand enquiry and observation. This was a free country, published in a free country and anyone is free to express their views by simply writing a letter to the editor asking my permission to publish it.

Hot Dog

There was a man who lived by the side of the road and he sold hot dogs, accounts George T. Truett Jr. He was hard of hearing, so he had no radio. He had trouble with his eyes, so he read no newspapers.

But he sold good hot dogs. He put signs up on the highway, telling how good they were. He stood on the side of the road and cried, "Buy a hot dog, mister?" And people bought. He increased his meat and bun orders. He bought a bigger stove, to take care of his trade.

He finally got his son home from college to help him. But then something happened. His son said, "Father, haven't you been listening to the radio? Haven't you been reading the newspapers? There's a big depression on. The European situation is terrible. The domestic situation is worse. Everything's going to pot."

So the father cut down on his meat and bun orders, took down his advertising signs, and no longer bothered to stand out on the highway to sell his hot dogs. And his hot dog sales fell almost overnight.

"You're right, son," the father said to the boy. "We're taking care in the middle of a great depression."

Free Freight On Grain Proposed For Dry Areas

Extension of free-freight on shipments of seed and feed into the drought areas of Saskatchewan and Alberta was proposed in a communication to the Dominion Minister of Agriculture by the North-West Line Elevators Assocation, released recently. Since 1941 the Dominion Government has been paying freight from the head of the Great Lakes on grains shipped to Eastern feeders and freight from Alberta on grains shipped to British Columbia feeders. The cost to the Dominion Government has been $125,000-000.00.

The letter to the Dominion Government reads:

"The Rt. Hon. J. G. Gardiner,
 The Minister of Agriculture,
 Ottawa, Ontario.

Dear Mr. Gardiner:

"As you are aware, the shipment of large quantities of feed and seed grain into drought-stricken areas of Saskatchewan and Al-bertia will be necessary this winter.

"Since 1941, the Dominion Government has been paying freight charges on grains shipped from the head of the Great Lakes to livestock and poultry feeders and dairy operators in Eastern Canada, and from Alberta points to British Columbia feeders. Recently this free freight was extended to the newly organized Province of Newfoundland.

"We strongly urge that this free freight policy be extended to seed and feed shipped into the drought areas of the Prairie Provinces. We consider that the farmers of Western Canada, and particularly those in the drought areas, are reserving of the same subsidies that are extended to feeders in other parts of Canada. It would permit the drought area farmers to retain their essential livestock, and to engage in feeding livestock and poultry for marketing, and to carry on dairy operations, at least, in even competition, as to costs, with farmers and feeders in other parts

"In view of the fact that this free freight subsidy was extended to Newfoundland, without reference to Parliament, we take it that the Government has equal power to extend this needed essistance to farmers in the drought areas of Saskatchewan and Alberta. We, therefore, urge that immediate action be taken in order to prevent drought area farmers of Western Canada from being forced to sacrifice their livestock, poultry and dairy herds.

Yours very truly,

New Alberta Senator Is Man of the People

J. W. Stambaugh, President of the Alberta Liberal Association, was appointed to the Canadian Senate last week.

A man who has lived close to the soil all his life, and therefore close to the people of Alberta, Mr. Stambaugh is well equipped by background and experience to represent the people of Alberta in the senior legislative house in Ottawa.

EARLY RESIDENT BRUCE DISTRICT

John Wesley Stambaugh, 61, has been farmer and machine agent at Bruce, in the Edmonton area, for 4 years and head of the Alberta Liberal Association since 1945. His appointment to the senate completes the list of Alberta members of the upper chamber.

Other Alberta members are: Hon. James A. MacKinnon, Edmonton; Hon. Aristide Blais, formerly of Edmonton and now in Vancouver; Hon. W. A. Buchanan, Lethbridge; Hon. F. W. Gershaw, Medicine Hat; Hon. G. H. Ross, Calgary.

Mr. Stambaugh was shingling the roof of a church at Bruce when informed Wednesday of his appointment. After receiving congratulations of his family and friends, he returned to his shingling job.

PARTY WORKER

Mr. Stambaugh has been active in Liberal party work for 38 years. He has held numerous offices in provincial and federal constituency associations.

He was born July 1, 1888, at Melvin, Mich., and received his education there. When 17, he came to Alberta and homesteaded near the present town of Bruce, 75 miles east of Edmonton.

J. W. STAMBAUGH

After farming for a few years, Mr. Stambaugh moved to Edmonton. In 1911 he was president of the North Edmonton Liberal Association and the same year headed the North Edmonton Civic Association. After living here three years, he returned to farming operations at Bruce.

Mr. Stambaugh recalls that he commenced homestead operations with a team of oxen which he bought in St. Albert. A wagon was purchased in Edmonton and the outfit covered the stretch to Bruce with Mr. Stambaugh at the controls.

In 1927 Mr. Stambaugh disposed of his original farm and the same year bought another near Bruce. Later he also engaged in private business in Bruce operating a machine agency in partnership with R. J. Wilson.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE

For many years Mr. Stambaugh has been a school trustee for the district. He first became a trustee in 1912. He has been a member of the Bruce school board for many years. When the larger unit known as Holden was organized he was a member of the first divisional board.

For some time he was a member of the Viking municipal hospital board.

Mr. Stambaugh was president of the Bruce Constituency Provincial Liberal Association and the Camrose Federal Liberal Association. In 1945, Mr. Stambaugh was elected president of the Alberta Liberal Association, which post he has since held. He succeeded H. J. Montgomery of Wetaskiwin.

In 1912 Mr. Stambaugh married Miss Amy E. Lake, of Edmonton. Their five children are: Kenneth, who is operating a farm; Donald, a garage operator; Jack, oil company agent; and one daughter, Evelyn, Mrs. C. E. Nolan, all at Bruce.

Bird Sees First-Hand South American Revolution

By JACK BIRD

(This is the final article of five in a series written especially for Community Publications of a 15,000 mile journey to the West Indies and South America.)

Less than half-an-hour after crossing the equator we were in Belém, Brazil, my ultimate destination on the trip.

Brazil is so large that it is more than half the area of the whole continent. Indeed, the United States of Brazil are larger than the United States of America.

WEATHER HOT

Belen—also called Para, for it is on the Para River—is 100 miles south of the equator, yet the temperature next day was only 82 in the shade. But it was a different kind of 82 than you will find anywhere in Canada. At noon the sun was almost directly overhead; my shadow was only two feet long, and perspiration simply oozed out of me. I'd wipe my face and neck with a handkerchief, and almost right away it would be time to wipe again. If I leaned forward, a miniature waterfall would drip off the end of my chin; I could feel it trickle down my chest and back; my shirt was wet and clung to me. By 4 o'clock, though, the day began to cool.

RECEPTION WARM

I returned to Venezuela, flying across the whole northern border. At the four cities I stopped, armed soldiers were everywhere, for the country was in the throes of a revolution. At one air port they even had men and a machine gun dug in right by the landing strip where we stopped. But I saw no violence, for the army took over without firing a shot.

Then I flew to Barranquilla, in the Republic of Columbia. Here the temperature was 87, and dropped only two degrees during the night, with no cool breeze; so that, as in Brazil, I perspired freely, and could not sleep, but lay there all night long watching the bats, like little black shadows, flit in and out of my screenless window. My last view of South America was when I looked over my left shoulder, through the port hole of our Convair 240, and saw way back and below, the flat, blue, level country at the mouth of the Magdalena River, with grey storm clouds gathering with tropical swiftness.

Two-and-a-half hours later we landed on the 144-mile long mountainous island of Jamaica. It was good to be back in a country where they speak English, but better still was to be back in a place where the accept the money you have to spend. That was the bugbear on the whole tour, for although I had enough money, I didn't have enough of the most-needed kind of money, for it was Uncle Sam's dollars that was real legal tender in most of the places I visited.

RETURN TO CANADA

After 13 days in Jamaica, where I experienced the hottest weather on the whole tour—for it was 88 one day—I left at quarter to one in the afternoon, and was in Toronto, Ontario, at ten after nine at night of the same day; and we had spent an hour at Nassau, in the Bahamas, our only stop.

Our pilot told us that on the last stretch of our flight we were doing 300 miles an hour. We crossed the west end of Lake Ontario in 10 minutes.

And so I returned home, a few days later, from a trip that once more, for several months at least, had satisfied my longing for far away places.

South Edmonton Woodward Store to Hinge on Trade Talks

Whether or not construction of the proposed $2,000,000 Woodward store on Whyte avenue and 106 street, will be started next spring will depend on the satisfactory development of the Washington trade talks.

This statement was made by W. C. Woodward of Vancouver, president of the Woodward Departmental stores.

The store executive expressed the opinion that the Washington conference is of importance to all, "including the USA."

Mr. Woodward was in the city Friday en route east on a buying trip.

The South Edmonton store has been estimated to cost $2,000,000. It will be a four or five storey structure at the Northwest Corner of Whyte (82) avenue and 106 street.

Mr. Woodward said, "It is es-

The Republican "Grand Old Party" has been out of power in the United States for 17 years and cannot elect a president for at least three more years. It is almost certain that Thomas E. Dewey, who was so certain of winning last year will not be permitted to run again. He thought he couldn't lose last fall—and never took defeat into his calculations, which were badly estimated. The "underdog" fighter—Harry Truman—is looking forward to prospects for a third term starting in 1952.

LONDON. — A novel Safety First toy attracted much attention at the recent opening in Birmingham of the toy display organized by the Toy Fair Association of Great Britain. It consisted of a 40-foot model village, an electrically-driven car and two small dummy children, one of whom crosses the road while the other hesitates and is knocked down.

Both car and children are directed by remote control and local authorities are to order collapsible versions of the model for Safety First demonstrations at schools. The toy is expected to have considerable overseas demand.
